Shooting. Suspects fire at police, hightail it to Vernon

RCMP in West Kelowna have three people in custody after a wild car chase during which shots were fired at police.

The chase began at about 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday in West Kelowna and ended more than 50 kilometres away just outside of Vernon.

RCMP were trying to force the driver of a green Dodge Caravan to pull over to the side of the road when the driver refused and someone in the vehicle fired shots at the officers with a high-powered hunting rifle, RCMP Const. Kris Clark said.

Mounties from Kelowna, West Kelowna and Vernon joined forces in a high-speed chase as the suspects raced toward Vernon. Somehow the trio managed to switch vehicles twice, abandoning their van for a red pickup truck and then a black one, which Clark said was in all likelihood stolen.

The suspects fired more shots at the vehicle of a Vernon K-9-unit handler and his German shepherd, Clark said.

The chase ended north of Vernon about an hour later, when the speeding black pickup truck ran over a spike belt.

The three suspects — two men and one woman — were arrested.

No officers were hurt, but the arrested woman was sent to hospital with "undetermined injuries," Clark said.

Police in the Okanagan are turning the investigation over to the New Westminster Police Department, he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Asphalt patchwork. City officials working on plan to keep historic charm while ensuring road safety

PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS

Gastown's "cobblestone" streets could be getting a facelift.

City officials are looking at replacing the brick-lined roads of Vancouver's oldest neighbourhood while preserving the historic charm that makes it one of the city's biggest tourist draws.

City engineer Peter Judd said workers have filled potholes in the area — which has turned the brick streets into an asphalt patchwork — to keep the road safe for driving.

He said this is only a temporary solution and the city will undertake more permanent repairs that fit with the existing road surface.

The streets aren't really made from cobblestone, he added, but from concrete pavers.

"We're looking at options for completely replacing the current treatment, but doing it with something that's consistent with the historic theme of that neighbourhood, not just asphalt or concrete," he said.

Judd stressed the roadways won't be all asphalt.

"We're looking at different styles of pavers, pavers with a different treatment underneath to keep them in place or potentially even something that's more consistent with the historic cobblestone look."

Marge Roe, a Burnaby resident who comes to Gastown to visit her hairdresser, said she hopes the cobblestone streets will be maintained, or the neighbourhood could lose its historic feel.

"We come down once a month to look around, and I think it's really nice," she said. "It would lose a lot of its character if they didn't replace the asphalt. The cobblestones are what makes it so different down here."

Pipeline. B.C. stands less to gain in revenue: Report

Based on straight math, British Columbians shouldn't be surprised to learn they will draw far fewer economic benefits than Alberta — or even Ontario — from the Northern Gateway pipeline, says a new report.

B.C. Premier Christy Clark has argued her province has taken on 100 per cent of the marine risk, while receiving not much more of the economic benefit than provinces that have no risk at all.

But a research report released Tuesday by the Canadian Energy Research Institute concludes B.C.'s what-if concerns aside, Ontario stands to gain much more because of its position as Canada's manufacturing heartland.

The report examined only the forecasted value of ongoing upstream oil sands development.

"Ontario services the oil sands projects with steel and materials and equipment more so than British Columbia does," said Dinara Millington, senior research director with the institute. "The outputs of one sector ... would become inputs in the oil sands industry sector."

The new report calculates the value of several key economic indicators around current and future oil production if Enbridge's Northern Gateway and two other major pipeline projects go ahead as proposed.

Including the expansions by Kinder Morgan and Keystone XL, the report predicts Alberta alone will collect half a trillion dollars in taxes over 25 years but B.C. will only reap $9 billion. Ontario would garner $28 billion.

B.C. gains its taxation revenue from oil development mainly due to geography — its proximity to Alberta — and via a gas plant that exports gas to northern Alberta for oil sands projects' use, Millington said.

Spotlighting only the Northern Gateway project, researchers concluded B.C. will make $1 billion in tax revenues, as opposed to Alberta at $73 billion and Ontario at $4 billion.

Over the same period, the report found the project will boost B.C.'s gross domestic product by 5.1 per cent, as opposed to 352.3 per cent for Alberta and 11.4 per cent for Ontario.

The project equates to 76,000 person-years of employment for British Columbians, in contrast with 1,853,000 for Alberta and 155,00 for Ontario.

A tennis match full of admiration

VanOpen. Grand Slam champ Hingis and Rio Olympics hopeful Fichman to meet on court today

CHELSEA ALTICE
vancouver@metronews.ca

Instead of competing at the London 2012 Olympics in a mixed-doubles team with Roger Federer, Swiss tennis legend Martina Hingis will take on a former a Canadian junior champ at the Odlum Brown VanOpen.

"For me ... having to go back and play for at least six months and get back into fitness and tournaments, it was just too much," responded Hingis, when asked about the possibility of returning to the 2012 London Games.

Hingis, who's won 15 Grand Slam titles, retired from professional tennis in 2008, and while she misses the challenge of the professional circuit, she does not miss the grind of training and travel.

"If I had Serena's serve I would probably still be playing as well," said Hingis, who recently launched a clothing line with Vancouver-based company Tonic Lifestyle Apparel. "If you hit four aces in a game that makes tennis pretty easy."

Former junior national champion Sharon Fichman will face Hingis in a special exhibition match at the Hollyburn Country Club Wednesday.

Finchman — a 21-year-old Rio Olympics hopeful — is excited about the opportunity of playing against Hingis who she's been watching since kindergarten.

"I have posters of her in my room," said Fichman. "She was my favourite player and I always wanted to be just like her.

"I'm so honoured to be on the court with someone who's done so much and who's been an icon to the tennis world."

Hingis was humbled by her opponent's admiration.

"I hope that gives me some advantage," Hingis joked, adding she has never seen Fichman play.

"It will be a new experience and she's a Canadian hopeful, so I hope it will be a good match."

7 Winning ideas from Vancouver's re:THINK Housing competition

Vancouver's housing crisis is looking a little less insurmountable now that the winners of the city's re:THINK Housing competition have been chosen.

KATE WEBB
kate.webb@metronews.ca

ALL PHOTOS COURTESY CITY OF VANCOUVER

1 Living over a bridge

Seeking ways to add density to existing commercial corridors, UBC architecture professor Ian McDonald envisioned two parcels of land surrounding a row of several storefronts being bought and each space being used to build the legs of a giant platform above the stores. Once the "bridge" is complete, affordable residential units could be built on top, as well as rooftop such as a garden or pool.

2 Thin is in

Some underutilized residential streets have huge untapped potential for rezoning, according to veteran urban planner Christina DeMarco. She and retired city planner Ted Sebastian proposed halving some of Vancouver's north-south 66-foot wide right-of-ways (the spaces between property lines) to 33 feet, and repurposing the free land for affordable housing. By comparison, she said some right-of-ways in Europe are only 18 feet wide, and in Toronto only 25 feet. This would still allow for parking on one side of the street and two-way traffic. Their conservative estimate is that more than 10,000 homes could be created, tapping into more than $2 billion in land value.

3 Room for more?

The city has long been paving the way for more laneway housing, but Andrew Newman, who recently graduated with a master's in architecture from UBC, wants to see it go a step further by encouraging co-op-style housing agreements between neighbours. Whether there is space between properties at the front, back, or side, he thinks there is room in neighbourhoods all over for thin strips of multilevel, multiunit, sustainable housing. Newman suggests the original property owners each maintain 10 per cent ownership of the rezoned land. This would create more affordable housing, he said, by bringing down the capital investment required by first-time buyers.

4 That's node a bad idea

Theodore Lim and Stephanie Liou want the city to consider housing and transit issues together, given how much of urbanites' salaries those two things take up. They recommend selecting "nodes" — an intersection with abundant access to most of the city through at least two transecting lines of frequent transit. They argue the closer to the node, the more densely zoned areas should be. At the core of each node would be mid-rise housing, capped at 50 feet high (25 feet in transition zones).

A jury of six from the city's housing affordability task force chose the first three from among 70 submissions, while the other four were the most popular with the contest's 8,000 online voters. All will be included in the task force's final report to council in the fall, and staff will be asked to examine them and decide whether any can be done as demonstration projects. For more details, visit rethinkhousing.ca.

5 Precious cargo

Three people from Ryerson University in Toronto think the parking lot on 10th Avenue and Yukon Street just north of City Hall is the perfect place for recycled shipping containers, raised on legs above a ground-level park, to be added to Vancouver's affordable housing mix. The units would be 10 by 10 metres, and connected by stairs leading up to the roof. At the centre of the Cargo Park would be a 24-hour bakery, where presumably people could go for comfort if feeling low about living in shipping bins.

6 Yours (and his, and hers) to own

A collective house is a home in which residents share decision-making, food and living space. Co-operative ownership requires residents who move in to buy a share in the co-op, which is returned when they move out. A Vancouver bylaw currently prevents more than five unrelated adults from living in one residential unit, which is what's stopping co-operatively-owned collective houses from proliferating, according to the Vancouver Association of Collective Housing Enthusiasts. They want the zoning bylaws changed to recognize collective dwellings as legit and to raise the number of people allowed to live in them.

7 It takes a village to solve this crisis

This model, borrowed from Denmark, is all about a bunch of people getting together to create their "dream village," working together with an architect and contractor. With a donation of land from the city, they would build a 2,000 to 3,500-square-foot common house, perhaps with a circle of two-room suites around a central kitchen, dining and living room. The cost to buy into this strata-run multi-suite house would be relatively low — around $150,000 — according to Delta co-housing advocate Joanne Lund, and the city would be able to make money by either renting or leasing some of the units in co-ownership with the co-housing society.

Early release for pedophile's ex

The ex-wife of a notorious pedophile who aided her husband's horrific abuse and murder of young girls — and who let two children starve to death while her husband was in jail — was approved Tuesday for early release from prison, infuriating the victims' parents and reopening a dark chapter in Belgian history.

Michelle Martin, who is now 52, received a 30-year prison term in 2004 for not freeing girls her then-husband Marc Dutroux held captive behind a secret door in their decrepit, dirty basement in Marcinelle, 40 miles south of Brussels.

Dutroux, 55, is serving a life sentence.

Massive Indian power failure spreads to over half the country

Demand soaring.
Worry spreads that outdated infrastructure is unable to meet the growing demand

India's energy crisis cascaded over half the country Tuesday when three of its regional grids collapsed, leaving more than 600 million people without government-supplied electricity in one of the world's biggest-ever blackouts.

Hundreds of trains stalled across the country and traffic lights went out, causing widespread traffic jams in New Delhi. Electric crematoria stopped operating, some with bodies half burnt, power officials said.

The massive failure — a day after a similar, but smaller power failure — has raised serious concerns about India's outdated infrastructure and the government's inability to meet its huge appetite for energy as the country aspires to become a regional economic superpower.

Power Minister Sushil Kumar Shinde blamed the new collapse on states taking more than their allotted share of electricity.

"Everyone overdraws from the grid. Just this morning I held a meeting with power officials from the states and I gave directions that states that overdraw should be punished. We have given instructions that their power supply could be cut," he told reporters.

The new power failure affected people across more than a dozen states — more than the entire population of the European Union. The blackout was unusual in its reach, although its impact was softened by Indians' familiarity with frequent blackouts and the widespread availability of backup generators for major businesses.

Shinde said officials were working to get power restored as quickly as possible.

The outages came just a day after India's northern power grid collapsed for several hours.

Indian officials managed to restore power several hours later, but at 1:05 p.m. Tuesday the northern grid collapsed again, said Shailendre Dubey, an official at the Uttar Pradesh Power Corp. in India's largest state.

About the same time, the eastern grid failed and then the northeastern grid followed, energy officials in those regions said. The grids serve more than half India's population.

In West Bengal, express trains and local electric trains were stopped at stations across the state of West Bengal on the eastern grid. Crowds of people thronged the stations, waiting for any transport to take them to their destinations.

TWO WAYS TO WIN WITH SHELL!

Take a look at our sample story and then get writing!

Every road trip offers…

… memories to last a lifetime, but my most memorable was spent touring the Rocky Mountains in Alberta with my family. My parents packed my brother and me, aged 9 and 13, into our family SUV for a two-week trip.

I'm sure there were squabbles along the way, but when I look back I recall wonderful moments. I remember sunny days, stopping for ice cream at viewpoints along the highway, singing along to popular radio hits as we wound through the mountains and countless giggles as we entertained ourselves with silly road trip games like "I Spy".

But by far, the best part of our road trip was an unexpected adventure along the way. On an excursion to Lake Louise we took a wrong turn, and found ourselves driving down a secluded road underneath a canopy of trees, all alone except for an occasional sighting of wildlife. The views were spectacular and no one was in a hurry to return to the highway, so we carried on.

Eventually, the pavement became bumpy gravel. Crawling along at 10km an hour, we finally came to the end of the road – with a magnificent vista in view: sparkling turquoise water encircled by rugged mountains. Rather than reaching our planned destination, we had accidentally discovered Lake Moraine, a pristine glacial lake, far away from the touristy crowds. We sat still and quiet in the car, taking in the breathtaking view and realizing how lucky we were to get lost after all.

Patent trial. Apple attorney claims Samsung copied iPhone technology

An attorney for Apple told a jury Tuesday that bitter rival Samsung faced two options to compete in the booming cellphone market after Steve Jobs introduced the iPhone to critical acclaim in 2007: Innovate or copy.

Samsung chose to copy, making its smartphones and computer tablets illegal knockoffs of Apple's popular products, attorney Harold McElhinny claimed.

Samsung "has copied the entire design and user experience" of Apple's iPhone and iPad, McElhinny told a jury during his opening statement at the patent trial involving the world's two largest makers of cellphones.

In his opening statement, Samsung attorney Charles Verhoeven countered that the South Korean company employs thousands of designers and spends billions of dollars on research and development to create new products.

"Samsung is not some copyist, some Johnny-come-lately doing knockoffs," he said.

Verhoeven asserted that Apple is like many other companies that use similar technology and designs to satisfy consumer demands for phones and other high-tech devices.

For example, he said several other companies and inventors have filed patent applications for the rounded, rectangular shape associated with Apple products. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tech tussle

- A verdict in Apple's favour could send a message to consumers that Android-based products such as Samsung's are in legal jeopardy.
- A verdict in Samsung's favour, especially if it prevails on its demands that Apple pay its asking price for certain transmission technology, could lead to higher-priced Apple products.

Lowe's builds case for Rona takeover

Planned budget carrier worries pilots

Air Canada pilots are concerned that the airline's launch of a low-cost carrier could threaten their job security and working conditions, the union said Tuesday as the plans came closer to fruition after an arbitrator sided with the airline in a labour dispute.

A federal arbitrator chose Air Canada's final offer Monday, imposing a five-year collective agreement that includes, among other things, provisions allowing the airline to create a budget carrier.

The airline says the agreement, effective until April 2016, will give it the flexibility it needs to compete with budget carrier WestJet, which operates mostly domestic flights and doesn't have Air Canada's issues with union and pension woes.

"It's no secret WestJet has a fairly significant cost advantage over Air Canada, so we need to create a vehicle that will be competitive," said Air Canada spokesman Peter Fitzpatrick.

Air Canada pilots protest in front of the company's annual meeting in Calgary in June. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Air Canada's top executives have said the launch of a discount carrier is a top priority, but details on plans are sparse.

Although Air Canada's offer indicates the low-cost carrier will employ workers from the Air Canada Pilots Association, the union's president says it will be "under drastically different terms of employment." THE CANADIAN PRESS

JUST SAYIN'

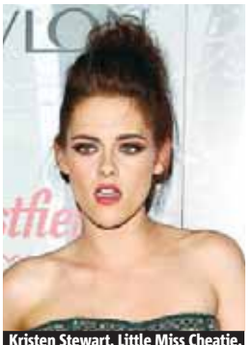
I don't know if I learned everything I needed to know in kindergarten, but there was lots of useful stuff, like waiting until the bathroom break to go pee.

Other stuff I'm still not sure about, like "some think it's candy but it's not," and "cheaters never prosper."

The first one we'll save for another column, but the cheaters line always causes me to go hmm. If that's true, why do so many people cheat?

Never mind the consequences, what's the value of the experience?

This is the question that must be going through the minds of the various cheaters who weren't paying attention in kindergarten. Almost everyone cheats, even though it's a hollow experience. Apparently, it beats the hollow experience of authentic existence. Maybe you have to go to graduate school to learn that one. Existentialism 101.



Kristen Stewart, Little Miss Cheatie. GETTY

Jonah Lehrer, El Cheato. HANDOUT

Yet, they still do it. Although anti-doping officials plan to run 6,250 doping tests at the current Summer Olympics, at least nine athletes (so far) thought they could beat the odds and have been caught and sent home, the latest being the proverbial Albanian weightlifter. Don't they have kindergarten in Albania?

Then there's that cheating vampire Kristen Stewart, who thought she could bite the wrong neck despite the fact that she's routinely surveilled by more cameras than a London subway platform.

Or how about Jonah Lehrer, the bright young journalist who resigned from the New Yorker this week after he got caught making up Bob Dylan quotes. "Who's Jonah Lehrer?" tweeted Dylan, who should talk. He stole Ramblin' Jack Eliot's voice. But then Ramblin' Jack was something of a cheat as well. He came across all Ramblin' Jack, folksy and wild-western, when in fact his real name was Elliot Charles Adnopoz and he grew up in Brooklyn.

Did Ramblin' Jack or Bobby ever stand up and say they cheated, that they weren't really itinerant troubadours who learned their art and wisdom on the highway? Uh, no. But making up quotes from an influential singer-songwriter, that's cheating. And if you weren't so busy nose-mining in kindergarten, you would know that.

Kip Litton, the marathon cheater. COURTESY MLIVE

The Father of All Cheats, a dentist named Kip Litton from Michigan, made up an entire marathon and placed himself first in it. Rosie Ruiz, the famed Boston Marathon cheat, had nothing on this guy. As well as the bogus West Wyoming marathon, Kip has cheated his way into Boston, and despite an exposé in this week's New Yorker (irony alert!) he's still going!

Cheaters never prosper. They also never give up. Didn't learn that in kindergarten, so it must be genetic.

Labyrinth of books makes for twisted tunnel

If you are a lover of the written word, you'll be amazed by this labyrinth.

Brazilian artists Marcos Saboya and Gualter Pupo used 250,000 books to create it.

The installation at Britain's Southbank Centre is a part of the London 2012 Festival, a three-month-long cultural event held concurrently with the Olympics.

Book worm

- Inspired by a literary great. Brazilian artist Gualter Pupo said the installation's design is based on the fingerprint of Jorge Luis Borges, one of Latin America's greatest writers. "He was almost a library himself," Pupo joked.
- Maze's meaning. Is it a maze or a bibliophile's dream? Pupo said the idea behind this interactive installation is to gaze at the covers and read the books, all to rekindle the power of literature first experienced in childhood. "People have to look at literature and remember how it builds our character and personality," he said. About the concept of a maze, the artist profoundly added: "You need to get lost in order to find your right way."
- Book sources. Pupo said that about half of the books were donated by British charity group Oxfam, with the rest provided by numerous book publishers. Pupo, director of non-profit production company Hungry Man, said all the books will be donated back to charity after the exhibition ends on Aug. 26.

volunteers a day for a three-week period were needed to assemble the 250,000-book-strong labyrinth, which is more than 500 square metres in size.

Neil Patrick Harris' Dr. Horrible Sing-Along Blog is being picked up by the CW network. HANDOUT

A look behind the CW curtain

TV critics press tour. The CW announces adding Neil Patrick Harris online hit, and teases other upcoming network projects

AMBER RAY
Metro World News

Dr. Horrible's Sing-Along Blog, Joss Whedon's three-part musical starring Neil Patrick Harris, Nathan Fillion and Felicia Day, officially makes its television debut on Oct. 9 at 9 p.m. on The CW, the network announced at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., this week.

The Internet hit, about a budding super villain (Harris), was created during the Writers Guild of America strike and first ran online in 2008. Mark Pedowitz, President of The CW, admitted he's a big fan of the musical, and said he proactively touched base with Whedon to get Dr. Horrible on The CW.

The CW provided some spoilers about the new season of The Vampire Diaries. HANDOUT

"I made the phone call. I said, 'would you like it on television?" Pedowitz told journalists. Pedowitz explained that the series will be re-edited for time constraints, so what viewers will see is "basically what's been online."

As for additional Dr. Horrible stories, Pedowitz is eager to bring any potential new episodes to The CW.

"Hopefully if Joss does another one, we'll get a crack at it," he said.

In other cult hit news, Pedowitz said the network would "love to do" a series based on the bloody, futuristic thriller Battle Royale, a Japanese film released in 2000 with a very Hunger Games-like plot: The government forces high-schoolers to fight to the death.

Though Pedowitz says he is a "big believer" in the show, particularly because of the movie's cult following and its dystopian plot, right now he says an adaptation is "at this point in time only in development.

"Not even in development. Only a phone call."

Regarding fantasy/sci-fi series that are returning to The CW, Pedowitz said the new season of The Vampire Diaries will (spoiler alert!) explore Elena's transition into a vampire.

"Does she follow Stefan's path or Damon's path?"

Considering the series' high body count, Pedowitz confirmed there will be new faces on Season 4.

"There are always new characters," he said. "And those who are dead can return."

Also at press tour, The CW announced that the winner of The Next, a singing competition that travels the nation searching for new talent, will be awarded a contract with Atlantic Records. Premiering Aug. 16 at 9 p.m., the series features mentors Nelly, Gloria Estefan, Joe Jonas and John Rich finding local talent, then bringing the singers to Los Angeles, where they will vie for viewers' votes during live performances.

Also announced

The next cycle of America's Next Top Model will be the series' first college edition, featuring 13 model wannabes who are enrolled in universities and trade schools across the country.

- Season starts. Also new to the series is a social media correspondent, fashion blogger Bryanboy, who will share comments and video messages from viewers during judging. The season premieres Aug. 24 at 8 p.m.

It's been a month since Katie Holmes filed for divorce from Tom Cruise, and apparently the lifestyle change is working out for her.

We expected that Snoop Dogg would change his name again at some point. The rapper — who was born Calvin Cordozar Broadus, Jr., christened himself Snoop Doggy Dogg, then dropped the Doggy — was at least one reincarnation behind Diddy.

What we didn't expect was that we'd be calling him Snoop Lion. The new name comes after a trip to Jamaica, where he visited with Rastafarian priests.

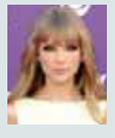
"I want to bury Snoop Dogg, and become Snoop Lion," Snoop revealed at a news conference in New York. "I didn't know that until I went to the temple, where the High Priest asked me what my name was, and I said, 'Snoop Dogg.' And he looked me in my eyes and said, 'No more. You are the light; you are the lion.' From that moment on, it's like I had started to understand why I was there."

Since when did Snoop start to sound like your too-touchy yoga teacher? That's a question for another day.

For today, we ask you this: What is Justin Bieber's spirit animal?

Lindsay Lohan
Spirit animal: Capuchin monkey.
Because no other animal is known to both chain smoke and steal.

Justin Bieber
Spirit animal: Chipmunk.
The high voice, the admirable scrappiness, the built-in racing stripes: Chipmunk DNA is one diamond earring removed from Bieber's building blocks.



Taylor Swift
Spirit animal: Gazelle.
So graceful, so delicate, so innocent. And yet, we'd be really afraid to fall in her pen.

Tom Cruise
Spirit animal: Cockatoo.
Perfectly coiffed and dead behind the eyes, both of these unnerving creatures have learned to speak gibberish while mimicking humans.

Arnold Schwarzenegger and Maria Shriver

Schwarzenegger ranch available at a discount

Arnold Schwarzenegger and Maria Shriver are still looking to unload their 24-acre Santa-Barbara-area ranch and have reduced the price again, according to Radar Online.

The sprawling estate — former owners of which include Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart and John Wayne — has been on the market since January and is now being offered for $4.495 million US.

Schwarzenegger and Shriver purchased the property in 2008 for $4.7 million. Despite taking a potential loss on the sale, Shriver is reportedly eager to unload it.

"She thinks the land has bad energy," a source says. "Maria's a very spiritual person and she doesn't want any negativity in her life, especially after everything she went through, so she just wants it gone from her life."

That "everything" the source refers to includes Schwarzenegger's admission that he maintained an affair and fathered a child with a member of their household staff.

ABC drops Willard improv show after arrest

Two weeks after Fred Willard was arrested in an adult theatre for indecent exposure, ABC has decided not to air the final two episodes of his improv show, Trust Us With Your Life, according to the Associated Press. Willard was previously let go from a show on PBS, Market Warriors, immediately after the arrest.

Whole crew to strip down for Lohan topless scene

Lindsay Lohan will apparently go topless on camera, but there are some interesting conditions.

According to TMZ, before stripping down for a steamy sex scene in her latest project, the Canyons, Lohan insisted the crew do the same, leading to the scene being filmed by about 10 men in their underwear.

Wearing even less, though, was Lohan's co-star, adult film actor James Deen, who likely didn't take much issue with removing his clothes.

Summer is the peak time for Canadian families to go on vacation, but let's face it; the cost of hotels, food and fun can blow your budget. With only a handful of weeks left before the kids go back to school, here's five suggestions for cheap day getaways in Canada.

MAE GIFFORD

5 cheap summer activities

Ride around Stanley Park in Vancouver

Estimated cost: $125-150 for a family of four to rent bikes for half a day

A popular pastime for locals and tourists, renting bikes and sailing around the park's stunning seawall never gets old because you discover something new every time. The park is full of famous landmarks so create a fun (and free!) scavenger hunt by searching for each one.

Raft down Calgary's Bow River

Estimated cost: $10 to $55 for four to six people

Most Calgarians agree there's no better way to spend a hot summer day than drifting along the Bow River. This activity is free if you already own or can borrow a raft but the cost to rent a six-person floater is $55. Bring some drinks and snacks and you're laughing. Don't forget sunscreen and life jackets.

Soak up the sun on Grand Beach, Manitoba

Estimated cost: $10-$50 for a family of four

Nestled on the eastern shore of Lake Winnipeg, Grand Beach features three kilometres of beautiful white sand. Located within a provincial park, there's a lot of affordable activities to do including hiking, bird watching and camping. Pack a picnic lunch and enjoy it while relaxing on a beach blanket.

Take a deep breath on Toronto's islands

Estimated cost: $21-$200 for a family of four, includes ferry and cost of amusement park

Quiet, tranquility and arguably the city's best skyline view can be found on Toronto's islands. Just a quick ferry ride away, Centre Island, Hanlan's Point and Ward's Island provide relief from city life and promote relaxation. Centreville Amusement Park is a popular destination for families because of its 30 rides and attractions. Save $5 by buying an all-day park pass for four online.

Paint a picture in Peggys Cove, Nova Scotia

Estimated cost: Free to $30 for art supplies

One of the most recognizable lighthouses in the world, a trip to this eastern province isn't complete without a stop at Peggys Cove. Make your next trip there meaningful by getting each person to draw or paint their interpretation of the famous red and white lighthouse. It will be an experience and piece of art that you'll treasure forever.

6 must-not-miss eats in Chicago

travel@metronews.ca

You make it all the way to the Windy City and you don't want to stumble through 10 oily, bready deep dish pizzas in one long weekend. You want someone to give you the shortcut to finding the best meals and atmosphere to understand this perfect triad of a town — art, architecture and eats.

Here's your cheat sheet. (All prices are for two.)

Local diner breakfast

Tempo Cafe (6 Chestnut St.)

Near the John Hancock observatory is a cozy diner that you wouldn't find unless a local led you there. For $10, you can have an omelette that will feed three (no kidding). It comes in a skillet, on a pile of freshly grated potato hash browns with toast and homemade marmalade. Try the apple and cheddar, not too cheesy, lots of apple chunks. Freshly pressed juices are a nice surprise. $20

Famous lunch

Frontera Grill (445 North Clark St.) rickbayless.com/restaurants/grill.html

Rick Bayless is America's restaurateur and Frontera Grill is his Mexican eatery that is packed all afternoon. Its funky artwork and bustling crowd gobble up the house specialty, ceviche. The mole trio will get you an overview of real Mexican tastes and the fresh margaritas will make sure you need a siesta. $60-$75 with drinks

Rooftop cocktails

Trump Tower (401 N Wabash St.) trumphotelcollection.com/chicago/rooftop-restaurants-chicago.php

Chicago is a city best seen from above the ground, so find a patio to rest, recharge and take in the scene. Trump tower has a river view from the 16th floor and serves up freezie pops of booze along with neat, sweet treats like mini Nutella ice cream cones. $30

A perfect partnership for the grill

This recipe serves four. THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

Honey and chicken is always a tasty combination, and when you add the element of cooking it on a barbecue or a grill, it's that much better.

In this recipe for Honey -Glazed Chicken Chopsticks, the addition of apple juice and thyme add a hint of herbs and apple flavour that only enhances the dish.

Using chopsticks for the skewers is a fun idea that your family will love!

1. Heat grill to medium-high. Soak 8 wooden chopsticks in water.

2. In a medium saucepan, heat 30 ml (2 tbsp) of the oil over high heat. Add onion and cook until soft, about 2 minutes. Add apple juice and thyme, bring to a boil and cook for 15 to 20 minutes, stirring occasionally, until sauce is thickened and reduced to about 125 ml (1/2 cup).

3. Strain mix into bowl and whisk in honey and soy sauce. Let cool to room temperature.

4. Brush chicken cubes on all sides with remaining canola oil and season with salt. Cut a slit into chicken pieces and insert chopsticks. Skewer all chicken onto 8 chopsticks. Grill until edges begin to brown and chicken is just cooked through, about 8 minutes. Begin brushing with glaze halfway through grilling. Remove to a platter, drizzle with remaining apple honey syrup and season to taste with salt.

Hand over that work contract

Shine with a shake.
Prepare your palms for any meet-and-greet

ELIAS
DA SILVA-POWELL
TalentEgg.ca

Meeting a manager for the first time? Don't suffocate them with a double-handed squeeze. One hand will do just fine! ISTOCK

Starting your first entry-level or early career job will likely involve a small but significant action: the handshake.

Between networking, conferences, interviews and social events, you'll do a lot of handshaking in your life. U.S. president Theodore Roosevelt once shook more than 8,000 hands in a single day.

While you probably won't go quite that far, it's important to make sure you've got the basics in hand.

When your hands need a hand

Take a minute and really look at your hands.

Hands – the body's most versatile tool – often get neglected because they're in the middle of everything.

You may be advertising your hobbies without knowing it, in the form of paint, dirt or rough, calloused skin.

High-pressure situations can also create problems, as some people are prone to sweating when nervous. At the other end of the spectrum, cold weather can result in dry, cracked skin, which is not only painful, but unpleasant to look at.

Don't forget about your fingernails. Short, worried-looking nails suggest nail-biting (which a prospective employer may interpret as a lack of discipline), while unattended talons present a real risk of injury.

Perfect your pleasant palms

A soak in warm soapy water followed by a scrub with a nail brush will resolve most problems with dirt and grime. Wear gloves when working with your hands. Some retail stores carry a liquid solution which helps keep your hands stain-free.

Manage sweaty palms with over-the-counter products which will help your hands stay cool and dry. (At networking functions, be sure to hold your drink in your left hand.)

If you're prone to dry skin, find a non-greasy moisturizer that keeps your skin supple.

As a bare minimum, ensure your nails are trimmed and tidy.

This sort of care and attention helps avoid unpleasant surprises for someone joining you in a hand-clasp – surprises which might turn the friendliest individual off.

Get a grip!

Handshake technique

- Employ a one-handed shake. Throwing both hands into the mix is overly intimate.
- Make sure your fingers are together and that your palm connects with the other person's palm squarely.
- Don't shake anyone's hand without standing up. Ever. If you can't be bothered to stand, you don't need to shake hands.
- With that in mind, don't refuse to shake someone's hand when they're sitting.

Don't be shook by the shake

Everyone dreams of the perfect "deal closer" handshake — the handshake that tells others, "I'm reliable, serious and here to get things done."

While you might think this means an iron grip and a wide smile, handshake protocol varies widely around the world. Different cultures have different conventions relating to bodily contact, handshake pressure and duration, eye contact, and when to shake hands.

Canadian medal roundup. Canuck athletes have now captured four bronze at London Olympics

It was a multi-medal day for Canada at the London Olympics.

Antoine Valois-Fortier won a bronze in men's judo less than 30 minutes after the diving team of Roseline Filion and Meaghan Benfeito captured a bronze in the 10-metre synchronized event.

"We had to dive our hearts out. We were ready."

Roseline Filion, who with her diving partner Meaghan Benfeito captured a bronze in the 10-metre synchronized diving event.

About an hour later, weightlifter Christine Girard captured bronze in the women's 63-kilogram class.

Canada now has four total medals after Tuesday's action, all bronze.

Valois-Fortier, a 22-year-old from Quebec City, defeated American Travis Stevens 1-0 in the bronze medal bout of the men's 81-kilogram judo event.

"It feels amazing. I've sacrificed so much and all of the fights today were very hard," Valois-Fortier said. "It was tough mentally but the whole team supported me and I managed to pull myself together. I wanted it really bad; it's what I work for every day."

Filion, from Laval, Que., and Benfeito, from Montreal, finished with a combined score of 337.62 for their diving bronze.

"We said there was nothing more we could have done," Filion said.

China continued to dominate the competition, with Chen Ruolin and Wang Hao winning the gold.

"They can make mistakes," added Benfeito. "We try to say we can win the gold. But they're amazing divers."

Paola Espinosa Sanchez and Alejandra Orozco Loza of Mexico took the silver.

Girard, who grew up in Rouyn-Noranda, Que., and lives in White Rock, B.C., completed the hat trick an hour later to become the first Canadian woman to ever win a weightlifting medal at a Games.

She finished third with a total weight of 236 kilograms.

"It is very hard to describe how I feel," Girard said. "Four years ago in Beijing I came fourth and since then I have spent the past four years training through injuries and various changes in my life to get to this moment."

Maiya Maneza of Kazakhstan won gold, while Svetlana Tsarukaeva of Russia captured silver.

The medals come two days after Emilie Heymans and Jennifer Abel gave Canada its first of the Games with a third-place finish in the women's three-metre synchro.

Two finals, two gold. And all anybody wants to know about Chinese teen swimming sensation Ye Shiwen is whether she's doping. Phelps swims into record book with relay win

Michael Phelps celebrates winning gold in the men's 4 x 200m freestyle relay final Tuesday at the Aquatics Centre in Olympic Park. EZRA SHAW/GETTY IMAGES

Swimmer Michael Phelps became the most successful Olympian in history Tuesday with a gold and a silver medal that propelled him to a place in the sporting record books and the U.S. to 4x200 freestyle victory.

Phelps shattered the record for most Olympic medals ever with a frustrating defeat in the 200-metre butterfly that left him with silver, followed by a relay gold.

Phelps lost the 200-metre butterfly to South African Chad le Clos, when, after leading all the way, he tried to glide to the wall after his final stroke, opening the way for le Clos to touch the wall first instead. Japan's Takeshi Matsuda took the bronze.

Career medals

Phelps now has 15 gold, two silver and two bronze medals.

It was an astounding mistake considering he won a memorable race in Beijing when a rival made the very same error. He held his head in his hands as he stood in the pool and appeared upset with himself.

But in his second race of the night, the United States team of Ryan Lochte, Conor Dwyer, Ricky Berens and Phelps on the anchor leg won in six minutes, 59.70 seconds. France took the silver in 7:02.77, while China was third in 7:06.30. It was Phelps' first gold of these Olympics.

With 19 career medals spanning three Olympics, Phelps broke the record of Soviet gymnast Larisa Latynina, who won 18 medals in 1956, 1960 and 1964.

"You are now a complete legend," the public address announcer bellowed, accompanied by the Foo Fighters' song Best of You.

Canadian hopes 'slip away' at Wimbledon

Canadian tennis star Milos Raonic's Games came to a heartbreaking end after losing a marathon match 6-3, 3-6, 25-23 to fifth-ranked Frenchman Jo-Wilfried Tsonga on Tuesday.

The hard-serving 21-year-old from Thornhill, Ont., saw his serve broken while trailing 24-23 in the third set.

"I felt like I played really well for most of the match and I just let it slip away from me at the end," Raonic said.

The official match time was three hours 57 minutes. The third set alone lasted an even three hours. The 66 games played were the most ever in a three-set Olympic match and the 48-game third set also set a record. It wasn't clear whether any time records were broken.

Aleksandra Wozniak didn't last nearly as long against Venus Williams as the Blainville, Que., native lost out 6-1, 6-1 to the American superstar.

In men's doubles, Toronto's Daniel Nestor and Vancouver's Vasek Pospisil fell in second-round action to the third-seeded Serbian duo of Janko Tipsarevic and Nenad Zimonjic 6-4, 5-7, 11-9.

Fuel Saver Technology

To ease the SRT8's 91-octane habit, the 6.4 comes with Fuel Saver Technology that powers down half of the eight cylinders when operating under light or no-load conditions. It doesn't help too much in city driving where consumption is rated at 17.1 l/100 km, but that number drops to 11.4 on the highway.

Base content

All SRT8s arrive contented to a reasonably complete degree, with climate control, heated and cooled leather seats for both rows, heated steering wheel and 20-inch wheels fitted with foot-wide Pirelli all-season performance tires.

Engine

Hauling anything with the SRT8 should be a breeze, owing to its 6.4-litre Hemi V8 generating 470 horsepower and 465 pound-feet of torque. That's up 50 horses and 45 pound-feet from the previous 6.1-litre SRT8. Jeep says that the 6.4 can propel the 2,340-kilogram Grand Cherokee to 60 m.p.h. (96 km/h) from rest in 4.8 seconds.

Review. Trust Jeep to build yet another vehicle no one else can

MALCOLM GUNN
Wheelbase Media

Acceleration, cornering force on asphalt and stopping distance generally have nothing to do — at all — with the Jeep brand. In fact, the Grand Cherokee SRT8 is about as un-Jeep-y as it gets.

But here it is, a combination that's unique among North American-based sport utility vehicles and a rare achievement for any such model from anywhere at just about any price.

Knobby tires, big ground clearance and exposed door hinges? Nope, but the SRT8 is a Jeep that you just have to love.

The initials refer to Chrysler's Street and Racing Technology division and the Grand Cherokee is one of four such designated models with the others being the Chrysler 300 and Dodge Charger sedans plus the Dodge Challenger SRT8 392. Later this year, the Viper coupe returns as the first SRT-nameplated model (the Dodge handle has been dropped).

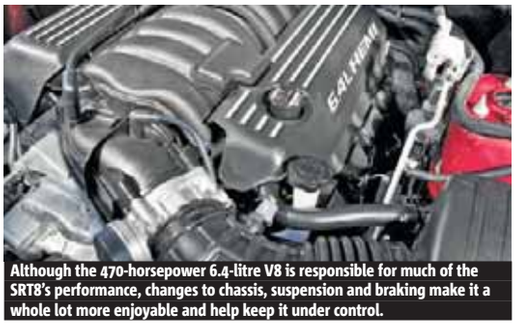
You're forgiven if you assumed the ride was over for the Grand Cherokee SRT8 when it passed into history following the 2010 model year.

With its big-power V8 and taut suspension, the Jeep delivered Cheetah-like launches along with snappy passing prowess, regardless of weather or road conditions. However, at a cost of thousands more than a more-off-road-capable base Laredo V6 or Limited V8, that could have easily sealed the SRT8's fate.

Well, apparently there remains enough potential buyers with outrageous transportation leanings to prod Jeep into bringing the SRT8 back on line.

Only this time there's more passenger space, luxury features and power, all wrapped up in a sinfully slick wrapper.

The SRT8 falls into the usual trap of adding silver trim — lots of it — which makes the otherwise classy interior seem a bit derivative.



Although the 470-horsepower 6.4-litre V8 is responsible for much of the SRT8's performance, changes to chassis, suspension and braking make it a whole lot more enjoyable and help keep it under control.

Evolving the road trip, through social media

Autopilot

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

I don't know about you, but sometimes I feel like the world is going to hell in an Internet-connected hand basket.

Primarily those are the times when I would look around our home and see every member of our family dispersed and tethered to various and different screens. Four separate islands of Facebook, Call of Duty, YouTube, and Sportsnet.

So I was thrilled to get wind of Greg Mountenay and his most excellent road trip adventure.

Greg took an old, glorious form of non-digital social interaction, and one close to my heart, the automobile road trip, and gave it a really cool, new life — by actually leveraging our now-digitized social life.

He decided to drive across the country and connect with as many of his Facebook friends as possible. What a cool idea!

"A lot of people are concerned that social media is going to take over, be the new frontier of conversation," says Greg, over his cell phone connected to a hands-free Bluetooth device, on the road somewhere between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury, Ont.

"But it means more to me, that I have stayed connected to my friends."

He makes a great point; the continued connection has allowed him to be welcomed with open arms from one end of the country to another, and created the circumstances, as he says, "to put another layer on the friendship."

But how did he come up with the idea?

"It was in that lull after graduation, when you realize you have two degrees and are unemployable ... I was hanging out with one of my friends, saying wouldn't it be great to just walk into a Canadian Tire, grab everything you need for a Canada-wide road trip — GPS, sleeping bag, tent — and head on my way."

Turns out, this friend has a friend at Canadian Tire. Long story short, Greg more or less got this cool, "summer job" at Canadian Tire, driving across the country in his 2003 Suzuki Grand Vitara, connecting face-to-face with friends and family, blogging about his experiences, and trying out various Canadian Tire road trip products, like the Jawbone Bluetooth, Magellan GPS, and Coleman Instant Tent.

After starting from Canadian Tire in Peterborough, Ont., and making it all the way to the West Coast, Greg Mountenay is now moving through Ontario again, en route to his final destination in Halifax. CONTRIBUTED

All along he wanted to tie the trip to Facebook, to visit as many Facebook friends as possible along the way. But it took on an even greater Facebook spin when he started posting his possible itinerary.

"Once friends knew I was going across the country, they said, 'Well you have to stop and see me.'"

The other neat aspect of chronicling the journey over the web, is that friends can track his progress as he makes his way toward them. The "build up" creates even more excitement. He recalls his friend, Jen Feele, getting more excited by the day, as he made his slow way to her home base in Squamish, B.C.

"I get status updates from friends," says Greg.

"I know what's going on in their lives. But I haven't actually seen some of them for years. It was so amazing to be able to connect ... to see what their lives are like and what the country is like, from their perspective."
